This successful approach to learning Latin aims to take complete beginners to the point where they can read short extracts of poetry and prose. It can also be enjoyed by those who know some Latin and wish to revise and improve their ability.

Kat Mawford is in the final stages of a PhD in Classics at the University of Manchester, researching the depiction of shapeshifters in Greek myth and poetry. During her PhD, Kat has taught on courses on Greek literature and on Ancient Greek and Latin, and has worked extensively with Manchester Classics for All teaching Latin in local schools. She is also the Secretary of the Manchester Classical Association and co-leads a Classics and Ancient History themed outreach project, Athena’s Owls, a series of workshops aimed at young children.
